Hello everyone!

It’s November! That means it’s time for cold weather, end of semester projects, and soon enough, final exams. (Gulp!)

But don’t panic—the future isn’t just blizzards and boatloads of studying. BCSS will be holding a study break on Thursday, November 11th, where we’ll have tasty treats and when we’ll also hold our annual elections for BCSS officers for the 2011 calendar year! Time and place to be announced.

If you’re even remotely interested in being involved in BCSS or have any questions, feel free to send us an email at bcss-officers@mit.edu or to chat with one of us at our study break. Being an officer for BCSS is a really rewarding way to be an active part of the MIT brain + cognitive sciences community, and through BCSS, you’ll get the chance to help build that community.

November also means time for some much-needed breaks: Veterans’ Day (11/11) and Thanksgiving weekend (11/25-11/26).

And of course, there are lots of BCS events going on this month, from this semester’s Hans-Lukas Teuber Lecture given by Geoffrey E. Hinton of the University of Toronto to the annual Society for Neuroscience convention, which is being held this year in San Diego, CA.

All the best,

MIT Undergraduate Brain + Cognitive Sciences Society
